Westringia 'WES01' (b)

NATIVE SHRUBS & GROUNDCOVERS

Naringa™ Westringia is the best hedging form of Westringia available.

- Very fast establishing hedge with a tidier form.
- Performs very well in a landscape setting.
- Lots of mauve coloured flowers in spring, and regularly at other times.
- Needs pruning about half as much as other Westringias, and in a natural setting, probably not at all.
- Either leave unpruned in its tidy natural form or prune to shape 1–3 times a year after flowering. This depends on your requirements, more frequent pruning will provide a tidier and denser hedge.
- Do not use in heavy clay soils in depressed areas where it will be sitting in water, it can cause fungal problems. This plant isn't recommended for rain gardens.
